Keeping In Touch

Last month we introduced the Armstrong Online Forum. This is a website where you can post your glass related questions and get helpful replies. A lot of people have signed up and we have had some very informative questions and answers. We have also created a Facebook page and a Twitter account to try to keep you updated on the newest things going on at our store. All of these are free to join and are a great way to stay up to date with the latest information. Best of all, you can meet other glass artists, share your work and get some new project ideas.

Join us today by going to our website and clicking on the Facebook, Twitter, or Online Forum buttons.
